Welcome

The 33rd World Cooperative Congress will be a historic moment for the global cooperative movement. We will not only be exploring our cooperative identity, but also showcase ways to build a more secure future. The Congress programme will aim to deepen the cooperative identity by examining its values, strengthening its actions, committing to its principles, and living its achievements. These four themes will be addressed through a range of plenaries and parallel sessions designed to highlight the cooperative difference. I look forward to welcoming you to Congress, be that in person in Seoul, the Republic of Korea or virtually.

Pre-Congress events

ICA Cooperative Research Conference & 3rd International Forum on Cooperative Law

28–30 November 2021

Within the framework of the 33rd World Cooperative Congress, two preparatory research-based events – the ICA Cooperative Research Conference (Research Conference) and the 3rd International Forum on Cooperative Law (Law Forum) will be organized in a hybrid format from 28 to 30 November 2021, with the aim to stimulate discussions during the Congress.

The Research Conference and the Law Forum will be organized physically in the Grand Walkerhill Hotel as well as virtually through the Congress online platform. Both research-based events will present about 180 research papers from 43 countries and organize 18 special panel sessions, all dedicated to the issue of the Cooperative Identity.

OPENING COCKTAIL OF THE COOPERATIVE INNOVATION FAIR 2

Welcome to the Cooperative Innovation Fair!

Here you will join cooperatives and organisations who will present their products, services and innovations to all Congress participants. We invite you to take this opportunity to become an exhibitor, increase your global visibility and network with Congress participants. There is unlimited space for exhibitors who choose to showcase their innovations on the Congress online platform with e-booths, which will be accessible to registered attendees one week before Congress begins on 1 December, and will remain online for a month. For those who choose to attend in person, Congress participants in Seoul will explore booths at the exhibition hall of the Grand Walkerhill Seoul Hotel. Space is limited, therefore we encourage you to reserve your booth space soon. For more information, download the Cooperative Innovation Fair exhibitor's manual. If you're ready, click here to complete the Coop Fair application form. You can also send an email to: coopfair@icaworldcoopcongress.coop

PARALLEL SESSIONS: EXAMINING OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY THROUGH...

14:00

1.1 ...A STRONG COOPERATIVE BRAND 6

Good brand management has been shown to support business growth. In cooperatives, through the COOP marque and the dotcoop domain name, branding is also a reflection of the cooperative identity, with its values and principles, helping to build loyalty and increase the number of members. Cooperative branding can highlight cooperative identity and its components that most resonate with the public, like commitment to members and the community, while giving cooperatives a competitive edge. What is the best way to manage cooperative branding? What are the best examples? And how can we measure its impact?

Facilitator Ben Reid, O.B.E, member of the Board of DotCooperation (DotCoop), retired CEO of Midcounties Cooperative, ICA Board Director, UK (Live from the UK)

Panelists Roz Henry, CEO, Cooperative Business, New Zealand

Jen Horonjeff, Founder and CEO, Savvy Cooperative, USA

Phil Ponsonby, Group CEO, Midcounties Cooperative, UK

Isabelle Gagné, Director of Communications at Quebec Council for Cooperatives and Mutuals (CQCM), Canada Conseil québécois de la coopération et de la mutualité, Canada

Juan Pablo de Leon Murillo, Director of Communications at Caja Popular Mexicana, Mexico

1.2 ...INCLUSIVE GOVERNANCE (PRE-RECORDED) 8

Participation and inclusion of cultural, gender and age diversity are fundamental for a sound cooperative governance, and they are at the heart of our cooperative identity. To keep these characteristics alive, we must continuously question ourselves: Are we inclusive enough? What can we do to keep the cooperative identity appealing to everyone? How do we make sure our governance practices are inclusive and welcoming to all?

Facilitator Maria Eugenia Pérez Zea Chair of ICA Gender Equality Committee, President of ASCOOP, ICA Board Director, Colombia

Panelists Woonjeong Baek, Vice Chairperson, iCOOP, Republic of Korea

Ruth Jelimo Kosgei, Treasurer, Lelecheo Marketing Cooperative Society, Kenya

1.3 ...EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES (PRE-RECORDED) 4

Cooperative Principle #5 provides cooperatives with the basis to prioritise education, training and information for all. It's necessary to make cooperative curricula commonly and readily available at all levels of educational institutions, from elementary and secondary schools to college and university degree programs. What are the best emblematic examples? What have we learned from them? How can they be disseminated faster?

Facilitator Onofre Souza, President of Organização das Cooperativas Brasileiras de Mato Grosso (OCB/MT), ICA Board Member, Brazil

Panelists Karen Miner, Managing Director, International Centre for Co-operative Management of the Sobey School of Business, Saint Mary's University, Canada

Sonja Novkovic, Chair of the ICA Committee of Cooperative Research

1.4 ...COOPERATIVE CULTURE AND SAFEGUARDING CULTURAL HERITAGE 6

In 2016, UNESCO, via the German cooperative movement, recognized cooperatives as an Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity. UNESCO's decision is an important acknowledgment of the dedication shown by millions of people working in cooperatives all over the world. What is the implication of this honour? How can we promote it to strengthen the pride in, and value of cooperative identity worldwide?

Facilitator Stefania Marcone, Chief of the International Relations and European Policies Legacoop (Alliance of Italian Cooperatives), Italy

Panelists Thomas Mende, Vice President and Head of Committees and Communication, DZ Bank, Germany (Seoul)

1.5 ...THROUGH PARTNERSHIPS WITH GOVERNMENTS <sup>2</sup>

Many cooperatives have been created through grassroots campaigns. Others have been promoted and supported by governments as part of a country's economic strategy. Others have successfully developed a partnership ecosystem with governments through public policy co-creation and co-management. It has been shown that such approaches can be effective in growing the cooperative movement, especially in rural and marginalised communities. What lessons can we learn from these approaches? How can we encourage more governments to consider these approaches as part of their strategy for a sustainable future for all?

Facilitator Dr. Youngkon Koh President, Korea Institute for Cooperative Development (KICD), Republic of Korea

PLENARY 2 — STRENGTHENING OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY <sup>2</sup>

Innovation and entrepreneurship are more important than ever in facing today's complex global economy. The people-centred cooperative model nurtures talent, creativity and encourages innovative ideas to create a more humane and inclusive society. How do we make our cooperative identity a competitive advantage in the global market?

Speakers Idoia Mendia Second Vice President (Vicelehendakari) and Minister of Labor and Employment of the Basque Government

PARALLEL SESSIONS: STRENGTHENING OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY BY...

11:10 2.1 ...TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE DIGITAL AGE 6

The digital economy is around us. It transforms the world as we know it. From the “new normal” introduced by COVID-19, business models are emerging motivated by positive social impact, sustainable development and inclusion of gender and cultures. However, the digital economy is profoundly disrupting the world of work. What must be done to remain a source of inspiration while respecting members and their common interest? How can cooperatives guarantee a bright future for workers while going digital?

Facilitator Dr. Saji Gopinath Vice Chancellor of Kerala University of Digital Sciences, Innovation and Technology, India

Panelists Bitange Ndemo, Professor of Entrepreneurship, University of Nairobi, School of Business, Kenya

Louis Cousin, Sales Director, Startin'blox, Canada

Maria Rita Valencia Molina, National Manager of Education and Democracy, Cooperativa Medica del Valle y de Profesionales de Colombia, Coomeva, Colombia

Sarah de Heusch, Institutional Affairs Officer, Smart, Belgium

All types of organizations need to demonstrate an ethical, strong and resilient value chain that meets the highest standards to fight modern slavery, financial crime and climate change. Cooperative members are demanding more information on the products and services they consume. Regulators are considering stricter enforcement programs with substantial penalties for those who do not comply. How satisfactory are the relationships of cooperatives to current partner organizations in various value chains? Are there more business opportunities within the global Fair-Trade? Are secondary and tertiary cooperatives being used for leveraging the regional and global markets? Are they providing enough support to primary cooperatives and their communities?

Facilitator Marjaana Saarikoski, Communication Director, SOK, ICA Board Director, Finland

Panelists Mayuko Asahina, Director of Brand Strategy Division, Japanese Consumers' Co-operative Union (JCCU), Japan

Philippe Vanhuynhegem, Chief, Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work Branch, ILO, Geneva, Switzerland

2.3 ...HAVING A STRONG ENTREPRENEURIAL NETWORK 2

Innovation and entrepreneurship require the ability to connect to a large support network of people, ideas and financial resources. Successful cooperative partnerships and groupings, both sectoral and cross-sectoral, have developed in many countries over the last decades, based on cooperative Principle #6: cooperation among cooperatives. Can strong global networks of cooperatives be created to increase market shares and enter new ones? How do cooperatives pool entrepreneurial support services for start-ups, worker and community buyouts?

Facilitator Tarun Bhargava, Deputy General Manager, Indian Farmers Fertilizer Cooperative Ltd., Chair of ICETT, India

Panelists E.G., Nadeau, Co-Director, The Cooperative Society Project, USA

Tarun Bhargava, Deputy General Manager, Indian Farmers Fertilizer Cooperative Ltd., Chair of ICETT, India

Javier Goienetxea, President of the Congress, MONDRAGON Corporation, Arrasate, Spain

Mirai Chatterjee, Chairperson, SEWA Cooperative Federation, India

11:10

2.4 ...MEETING FUTURE CAPITAL NEEDS (PRE-RECORDED) 4

Based on their identity, cooperative enterprises have a specific capital structure because of their ownership and control system, with limited nominal capital contributed by members, while building long-term reserve funds. As a result, cooperatives strive to find innovative ways to build capital in order to support their development and make sure their capitalization model is taken into consideration by regulators. What should be done to ensure a form of capital management that allows for cooperatives to innovate, be resilient, grow and succeed in their mission?

Facilitator Gerardo Almaguer, President and CEO of Développement international Desjardins (DID), Canada

Panelists Ibrahima Keïta, Directeur Général à Kafo Jiginew, Mal

Sylvia Okinlay-Paraguya, General director, NATCCO, Philippines

David Venegas, CEO, Café Perú, Peru

Lori Kerr, General Director, FinDev Canada (TBC)

2.5 ...SUPPORTING ENTREPRENEURIAL INNOVATION

6

According to their international definition, cooperatives are characterized by being both enterprises and associations, and their true identity can only be acquired if a balance between the two elements is maintained. Therefore, entrepreneurial innovation must embody cooperative values and principles. What are their growth trajectories? How have cooperatives pursued entrepreneurial innovation while embodying cooperative values? What challenges must cooperatives overcome to become successful future businesses?

Facilitator Chanho CHOI, Senior Consultant, Korea Institute for Cooperative Development, Republic of Korea

Panelists Jeonghee Kim, Chairperson, iCOOP, Republic of Korea

Akira Kurimoto, Senior Fellow, Japan Co-operative Alliance, Japan

Alejandro Simón, CEO of Sancor Seguros & President of CITES (Centre for Technological, Business and Social Innovation), Argentina

PLENARY 3 — COMMITTING TO OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY (LIVE FROM INDIA) <sup>2</sup>

Inclusion and humanity are at the core of our identity, making cooperatives a valuable tool in the construction of positive peace. We respond to the needs of refugees, rebuild after natural disasters, look after the most vulnerable, and respond to the ravages of a global pandemic. These crises are constantly threatening an increasingly globalised economy. How can cooperatives work together to bring about positive and lasting change in the world?

ROUND TABLE — COMMITTING TO OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY FOR A POSITIVE GLOBAL CHANGE

The expert panel will discuss the present and future roles of cooperatives in affecting positive global change. Cooperatives have been very much involved and have very much to offer regarding peace construction and reconstruction, addressing the needs of refugees and manage natural disaster recovery.

PARALLEL SESSIONS: COMMITTING TO OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY FOR...

16:40 3.1 ...THE SURVIVAL OF THE PLANET (PRE-RECORDED) 4

The top priority of a majority of institutions on the planet is to act on climate change. Covid-19 has highlighted the interdependence between the degradation of the environment and health risks – but cooperatives had already been firmly committed to UN Sustainable Development Goals, long before the pandemic. How does the global cooperative movement fight against climate change? What measures are being taken in cooperative sectors – agriculture, fisheries, consumption, housing, health, banking, insurance, industry and services, etc. to mitigate the adverse effects of the climate crisis and build resilience? How do the different cooperative sectors address the loss of biodiversity? What are the best coping strategies?

3.2 ...PEACE AND EQUALITY 8

According to the ICA Declaration on Positive Peace through Cooperatives (2019), peace based on “good contribution in the community, particularly cooperation and integration, reconciliation and equality” is positive peace. Many times, cooperatives have been directly involved in positive peace initiatives without being necessarily recognized for the direct role they have played. Does support for positive peace feature prominently in the global cooperative movement? How do their actions translate into restoring post-conflict peace and stability, conflict prevention, natural disaster recovery and the refugee crisis?

3.3 ...COOPERATIVE DEVELOPMENT ACROSS THE WORLD

2

By giving local communities direct control over their destiny, whether in agricultural production, health, housing, education, industry, retail, banking or energy, cooperatives play a decisive role in the world economy. There are lessons to be learned from successes and failures in international cooperative development. What lessons have been learnt from the ICA-EU Partnership programme in cooperative development? How have the values and principles which are part of the cooperative identity been important in this process?

Facilitator Anders Lago, Chair of HSB, Chair of the ICA International Cooperative Development Platform, ICA Board Director, Sweden

3.4 ...STRENGTHENING THE COMMUNITY 6

Cooperative Principle #7: Concern for Community emphasizes the cooperative contribution to local community development, while promoting the economic participation of their members. The cooperative model has the potential to play a key role in communities facing various social problems, such as poverty, inequality and unemployment. It is an excellent model for building circular and autogenous communities by promoting the revitalization of the regional economy, creating jobs and increasing the social and economic participation of members in community development. How can this be enhanced to help communities facing various social issues? How can the cooperative movement help build independent, self-reliant communities that will reinvest their own knowledge and resources back in the community itself?

Facilitator Eric Bidet, Co-president of Addes and professor at Le Mans University, France

Panelists Elena Perez, Deputy Minister of Labor and Social Security, Basque Government, Spain

Sokchiveneath Taing Chhoan, Senior manager, Socio-Economic Development, Fédération des coopératives du Nouveau-Québec, Canada

3.5 ...FACING CRISES WITH STRENGTH 6

The COVID-19 pandemic is the best example of how disasters often occur unexpectedly and cause social, health and economic harm. Our open democratic system helps us face and overcome health, social and economic crises. Cooperatives have repeatedly shown resilience to crises. What have cooperatives done to emerge from this crisis?

PLENARY 4 — LIVING OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY <sup>2</sup>

The foundation of our identity drives cooperatives to pursue fundamental positive change in our world such as support for the UN's 2030 Sustainable Development Goals. As grassroots organisations led by their members, cooperatives are working strongly to offer effective approaches to sustainable development in the communities in which they are rooted. But how are UN global policies being turned into effective local actions?

PARALLEL SESSIONS: LIVING OUR COOPERATIVE IDENTITY WITH...

11:40 4.1 ...REWARDING JOBS 4

To maintain the cooperative movement's vision of fair and ethical economic development to ensure a bright future and rewarding jobs, more autonomy and active participation for workers, cooperatives must adapt to the changes brought about by computer systems and AI. They demonstrate a high level of innovation in creating new forms of work and working relationships. How will the relationship between unions and cooperatives look like in the future? What lessons can we learn from these new approaches?

4.2 ...ACCESSIBLE HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES

8

There are few issues that unite people around the world more than health care and health-related social services, especially under a global pandemic. Cooperatives have excelled in both fields and offer a unique alternative to the debate between public and private services. What innovative approaches have been implemented to face the growing cost of health care? How are cooperatives meeting the growing needs of both aging populations and vulnerable people? What might a cooperative program reflecting the future of care look like? How can the cooperative movement contribute to making health a priority for all?

Facilitator Dr. Carlos Zarco, President, IHCO, director, Fundacion Espriu, Spain

4.3 ...ENHANCED FOOD SECURITY

6

The relationship between food production and consumption is being tested in many ways – climate change, drought, flooding, refugee displacement, and rural depopulation. Particularly acute is the disruption of the chains of production and distribution. This, however, has provided a renewed role to cooperatives engaged in agricultural production. How do cooperatives address new ways to ensure production in food systems? How does this contribute to building sustainable, ethical and inclusive value chains?

Facilitator Musa Sibandze, President, Eswatini Farmers' Cooperative Union, Eswatini

Panelists Toru Nakaya, President, JA Zenchu, Japan

4.5 ...WITHIN THE SOCIAL AND SOLIDARITY ECONOMY

2

Cooperatives and other social and solidarity economy actors working with local governments in delivering services within society constitute an engine to improve local and territorial development. It is recognized that the social and solidarity economy (SSE) create wealth in urban and rural areas and contributes to sustainable local and territorial development. What are the best practices in such partnerships? How do we develop policies and programs that are favourable to the social and solidarity economy?
